

RIVIER COLLEGE INDUCTS STUDENTS INTO PSI CHI HONOR SOCIETY

(Rivier's News Report, May 18, 2012)*

Office of Marketing & Communications, Rivier College

Rivier College's Department of Psychology and Psi Chi, the National Honor Society for Psychology, inducted several new members last month at an induction ceremony held at the college. New inductees into the society included Aimee Bishop of Warwick, R.I.; Keri Carvalho of Hollis, N.H.; Adam Chelmo of Manchester, N.H.; Yvonne Chua of Salem, N.H.; Marisa Donati of Brookline, N.H.; Cassandra Durand of Nashua, N.H.; Sarah Fronckwicz of Farmingdale, N.Y.; Katelin Gallagher of Nashua, N.H.; Yanelis Garcia of Lowell, Mass.; Cora Healey of Bedford, N.H.; Sarah Howard of West Greenwich, R.I.; Sarah Jaber of Derry, N.H.; Amanda Molloy of Virginia Beach, VA; Johanna Moy of Atkinson, N.H.; Philip Ramos of Dracut, Mass.; Nichole Silver of Salem, N.H.; Nicholas Stelmach of Manchester, N.H.; and Lisa Svenson of Nashua, N.H.; Karen Waterman of Rutland, VT; and Rachel Young of Concord, N.H.

Psi Chi was founded on Sept. 4, 1929, during the Ninth International Congress of Psychology held at Yale University in New Haven, Conn. The Honor Society's stated purpose is to encourage, stimulate and maintain excellence in scholarship, and to advance the science of psychology. Many of the Society's members have gone on to distinguished careers in psychology, including several presidents of the American Psychological Association (APA) and the American Psychological Society (APS), numerous national and international award winners, and various other renowned research psychologists, authors, professors and practitioners. ■

* Retrieved November 20, 2012, from <http://www.rivier.edu/news/default.aspx?id=20473>