Three new student clubs formed on campus during the fall semester: a chapter of the National Education Association (NEA), the Multicultural Student Organization and the Rivier College Republicans.

With 3.2 million members, NEA is the nation's largest education association. Student members will gain valuable tools and resources to help prepare for their careers.

"NH NEA will bring additional professional workshops and provide other opportunities for professional growth for our students," said Associate Professor of Education Dr. Ann Ackerman, advisor of Rivier's NEA chapter.

The Multicultural Student Organization was established to create unity among the multicultural students on campus. Working with the Office of Multicultural Affairs, the group provides opportunities for people on campus to learn about different cultures and ethnicities.

The Rivier College Republicans' goals are to increase the political education and awareness of students, to get students involved in all levels of government, to provide an effective voice for Republican thought on campus, and to develop support for Republican issues. ■
