Naomi Tutu, the daughter of Archbishop Desmond Tutu, will speak January 24, 2012 at 7:00 p.m. in the Dion Center Reception Room. Tutu is expected to discuss how her life has presented challenges and opportunities to promote the dignity of all people.

“We are extremely excited to be hosting Naomi this evening,” said Coordinator of Student Activities and Orientation Eric Blackburn. “We look forward to hearing the insight she will provide about how to work for the betterment of the human family.”

The event is sponsored by the Office of Student Activities, the Office of Multicultural Affairs, and the Student Government Association.

Tutu is the third child of Archbishop Desmond and Nomalizo Tutu. She was born in South Africa, but has also lived in the United Kingdom and the United States. For most of her adult life, she has either lived in South Africa or the United States. Tutu attended the University of Kentucky, where she studied diplomacy and international commerce. She has dedicated her professional career to advocating for human rights. Tutu currently serves as a program coordinator for the Race Relations Institute at Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn. ■
