The River University Model United Nations delegation represented Madagascar at the Harvard National Model United Nations Conference at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel in February 2016. Twelve Rivier students discussed the world's pressing problems with more than 3,000 students from other colleges and universities across the United States as well as around the world.

Rivier students focused on questions of water scarcity, women's rights, current and future boundaries in the Middle East, and more. All students considered their participation a great learning experience. ■
